Explain why you feel this youth should be honored _____

We have been having difficulties with a first grade student who was exhibiting poor behavior and bad study habits. It was decided that we should try to partner the student with an older "buddy" who could talk to the student on his level and also set a good example. I asked Tongo if he would be up to the task and he was an enthusiastic "yes". In the ensuing weeks Tongo has been a positive influence on the student through his interactions with him. The student also enjoys his time with Tongo and we have been able to use their time together as a positive reward for good behavior and consequently we do not allow them to meet when this reward is not deserved. Tongo has bought in to being part of the team trying to ensure the student's success. This selflessness is the reason I believe that Tongo would be worthy of the "Do the Right Thing" award.
